

Weekly AI Win Tracker

Track what you build, what works, and what surprises you

The difference between someone who "tried AI" and someone who transformed their workflow is consistency. This tracker builds the habit. Spend 5 minutes at the end of each week logging what you built, what worked, and what you learned. After a month, you'll be stunned by how far you've come.

How to use it: Print one sheet per week (or save digitally). Fill it out on Friday afternoon. Keep all your sheets — your month-end review is just reading the stack.

Week 1

Week of: _____ to _____

What I Built This Week

What	How long it took	Would I use this again?

What Worked	What Didn't

Month-End Review

After four weeks, read through your sheets and answer these:

What's my most common use?

What's saving me the most time?

What should I be doing more of?

What's not worth the effort?

What's the best thing I built this month?

What's one new capability I want to explore next month?

Monthly Progress Check

Score yourself 1-5 on each. Watch these numbers climb over time.

Confidence using Claude	_____ / 5
Quality of my prompts	_____ / 5
Time saved per week	_____ / 5
Variety of things I'm building	_____ / 5
How often I verify before using	_____ / 5
